June 5, 2005

HDH is sponsoring a Poker Ride/Drive on Sunday, June 5, 2005 at the Pit Stop, Silver Springs. Registration will be at 9:00 a.m. First riders will leave at 10:00. Cost is $20 (includes lunch, registration and one poker hand). Additional hands will be $5 each. HDH members will bring a dish for pot luck. Contact Kathie Peterson at 246-5238 for information.

Although, the Hairy Horse Show got off to a rocky start, there was a good turnout. An accident involved Luanne King, Tiffany Boggs and a spectator. Luanne King was taken to a Reno hospital by the Care Flight Helicopter (not the ride she was anticipating). Luanne has a broken right femur and a broken thumb on her left hand. Tiffany suffered a bruise to the back of her head. Both are home recuperating. We hope to see both back in the saddle again soon.

Jill Andrews was the judge for the show. Her ring steward was Kelly Bodine. Larry McPherson announced the show.

"30 STEPS TO GOOD TRAIL MANNERS"

Compiled by Sharon Lamm

Editor's Note: Please read these steps and reassess your trail manners. Try to remember that not everyone on a trail ride is experienced and if you do not have "good trail manners" you may be responsible for someone getting injured. These steps should apply at any function where you go with your horse.

Most trail accidents are preventable. Observation of some tried and true trail manners can make the ride more pleasant and much less dangerous.

Be safe and courteous; don't be the cause of someone else's misfortune.

Don't take unsafe or untrained horses on a group ride.

These horses should be conditioned with experienced horses and riders before being subjected to a larger group.

Check your gear before the ride. Make sure it is correct and complete. (This goes for your horse, too.)

Arrive at the appointed meeting place on time. Late starts are stressful. If you can't make it or are going to be late, let someone know.

For longer rides, particularly in wooded areas, pack water and a bright colored lightweight jacket.

Someone in the ride should pack a first aid kit, plastic garbage bags, and a horse "utility kit".

Always have a "trail boss". Larger groups should also have a drag rider. These should be experienced horsepersons who can assist less experienced riders and horses, if necessary.

Use the "buddy system". Always be willing to lend a hand if needed, and ask for help if you need it.

Horses that kick should be flagged with a red tail ribbon to remind other riders to keep back.

Don't carry guns (except where permitted and necessary for personal safety.) Also, with rare exceptions, dogs and studs can complicate an otherwise tranquil trail ride.

Never start until all riders are mounted up and ready to go.

On the trail, never pass the trail boss. This is the cause of many a rider getting lost.

Leave at least one horse length between you and the horse in front; two lengths at a trot. Ride side-by-side only when the path is sufficiently wide so that horses won't try to nip or bump each other.

If you or your horse are having trouble, allow more space in front and behind. If necessary, ask the trailboss to stop the group to allow you to work out the problem.

Stay on the designated trail or road. Many areas are now closed to equestrians because poorly mannered riders have allowed their horses onto fields, into orchards and other areas "sensitive" to the property owners. RESPECT PRIVATE PROPERTY! (You'll also avoid ticks by staying on the road.)

Never leave a dismounted rider on the trail.

Never disturb livestock. Herding someone else's livestock without permission is known as "worrying" and is illegal.

Leave gates open or closed as found. Use "gate manners"; don't ride away from the gatekeeper until the gate is secured and the gatekeeper can join you.

At a stream, pond, or water tank, wait until all horses have had a chance to drink before riding away.

Some horses have trouble crossing streams. Give them space!

Tell the rider in front that you wish to pass so that he/she can correctly handle his/her horse as you come up, or advise you if he/she is having any problems.

Don't let your horse scratch on or nuzzle other horses or riders. Aside from being annoying and starting horse disputes, this is a frequent cause of "hung up" and broken headgear.

Never mount your horse from downhill. Never gallop away from the group. Coordinate "fast" work with the other riders so no one's horse gets "juiced up".

Smoking while riding can be dangerous. Pick a fire-safe rest stop to have that cigarette.

Drinking while riding can cause both social and safety problems. Make sure the group you are with is not offended by alcohol on the trail, and if you do have a sip, use discretion and moderation as your guide.

In camp, tie all horses. Most horses won't stand long while hobbled, and they, along with loose horses, can cause numerous problems.

Tie high, solid and short enough to prevent entanglement, and provide sufficient space between horses so they can't go "butt to butt" and kick each other.

Pick up all garbage from camp.

WEEKEND BUCKAROO
Harold Roy Miller

I'm out ridin the range, wild and free.
This cowboy life sure agrees with me.
A gentle breeze blows across my face as I urge my horse into a faster pace.

I left the herd just over the ridge
as I ford the river on a sand bar bridge.
Thunderheads in the distance make it plain there's gonna be a summer monsoon rain.

I'm prepared with a slicker and leather chaps
and my western saddle has new cinch straps.
I have a Colt pistol and my aim is steady,
so trouble or stampede, I'm shore 'nuf ready.

Then I'm abruptly torn from my day dream
by my wife's aggravated, high pitched scream.
I've let the horses' water run over again and it's flooded our new Appaloosa's pen.

I have a job to finish and I better not shirk so I turn off the water and get back to work.
I've returned to stark reality as duty calls,
and this weekend buckaroo is back to mucking stalls.
