RECIPES

"A Happy Horse" Recipe

Ingredients:

- 2 or 3 carrots, cut in pennies
- 1 or 2 apples, cut in quarters
- 1 cup of corn pieces (like in fields)
- 1/2 cup of Quaker Oats

Instructions:

1. The good part of this is you don't need to bake anything! The only thing you do is take everything and put it in your horse's feed bucket, or as a special treat.

Apple-Carrot Horse Biscuits

Ingredients:

- Honey
- 1/2 apple
- Grated carrots and carrot chunks
- Milk
- Whole-wheat flour
- Oatmeal

Instructions:

Mix grated carrots and carrot chunks, grated apple, oatmeal, whole-wheat flour and honey in a bowl. Stir until sticky and doughy. Add a little milk now and then so the mixture is moist (but still doughy). Shape the dough into balls and bake at 350 degrees for 15-20 minutes. Let cool.

Bit Sweetener

Ingredients:

- Peanutbutter

Instructions:

spread some peanutbutter over your bits before you ride and when you ride your horse he will have a little more spunk in his system.

No bake bran snaps

Ingredients:

- 4 cups bran 4 cups applesauce

Instructions:

Mix ingredients together. Mixture should be doughy. Roll out with rolling pin and cut into shapes with cookie cutters. Place on baking sheet lined with wax paper or parchment paper and let dry.

Ebay War

Harold Roy Miller

We were going to Elko, Nevada to do some reciting of the cowboy poems which I'd been writing. My outfit resembled something out of a Shepler's western wear book but my wife needed improving on her cowgirl look.

The Wranglers she was wearing made her look real cute and in a black derby hat she appeared astute. But she needed something fancy that symbolized the west like a buckskin jacket or a nice leather vest.

I knew the price of western trappings was mighty steep and I had written the book on chintzy and cheap. But I thought about it a while and then came up with a way; I'd check out the clothes they were selling on Ebay,

I surfed that web for a vest but to no avail. Then I came upon a fringed buckskin jacket for sale. We were both thrilled cuz this coat was nice so I bid the five buck minimum price.

There were two hours to go so I kept waiting, checking my bid and anticipating. Then an email came and said another buyer had put in a bid that was a dollar higher!

This turn of events made me want to holler. Every time I bid, someone raised me by a dollar. I figured it must be some kind of seller's trick. cuz no one could possibly place a bid that quick.

Even though I felt I was being sucked in, this was an item I really wanted to win. It was irritating me and I was starting to get mad, but I wanted that coat for my wife pretty bad.

So I started bidding at three dollars a pop, trying to get the other bidder to stop. It was amazing how fast that little five dollar jacket had moved up into the hundred dollar bracket!

I knew that last offer was the one that would count so in a frenzy I bid an exorbitant amount. My wife needed something with a western flavor and a very expensive jacket is exactly what I gave her.

Helpful Hints for Successfully Deworming your Horse

By: Aimée Sumner

Many horse owners face the difficult task of deworming a difficult or hard-to-handle horse. Given that most deworming medications have an unpleasant taste, it is not surprising that horses object so strongly to it being administered. The good news is, the even if your horse has been hard to medicate his entire life, you can change his attitude by giving him a fresh, new perspective on the experience.

The following are some tips to help make your next deworming experience more successful and less stressful for you and your horse.

- 1. Do not tie your horse. A horse that is already stressed about having a foul tasting object thrust into its mouth will only feel more claustrophobic and panicky while being tied. This can cause a horse to pull-back and possibly injure themselves or you. Even if you do manage to "get the job done" while the horse is tied, the chances are that the next time you attempt to medicate him he will put up even more resistance due to his prior negative experience.
- 2. You catch more horses with honey. The key to getting your horse to love being dewormed (yes, I said love) is to make it something he looks forward to. You accomplish this by taking advantage of the horse's natural craving for sugar. A couple of days before worming your horse purchase a large syringe and fill it with applesauce or a sweet liquid of some kind. We usually use Coca-Cola because the horses love it, but any sweet beverage will do.
- 3. Practice, practice, practice . With your horse wearing his halter and lead rope, attempt to syringe the goody into his mouth. If your horse is so phobic about being dewormed that you can't even get the syringe near his mouth, then start out on his shoulder or any part of his body that he will let you rest the syringe on. Using approach and retreat, gradually move the syringe closer and closer to his mouth. Once the horse will let you rest the syringe on his mouth, then insert the syringe for a couple of seconds and remove it. When he is relaxed, squeeze the goody into his mouth. Repeat several times until your horse is eager for you to put the syringe into his mouth. Repeat everyday until your horse is completely relaxed about the whole procedure.
- 4. Horses are gamblers. On the day that you want to deworm your horse, be sure to keep the same routine that you have been using for the past few days. Give your horse a couple of syringes of treat and then slip the medication into his mouth. Your horse will probably show some surprise upon tasting the medication, but that is usually the extent of the reaction. Once the horse has swallowed the medication, then follow it up with another couple of syringes of treat. Your horse will think that he just tasted one bad apple out of several very good apples and continue to accept the syringe into his mouth. It is a good idea to give your horse a treat in this way periodically so that he never gets wise as to when he is going to be medicated.
