Fall Transition Tips

October 08 2010, Article # 17079

Fall's arrival means it's time to get your horse and farm ready for winter. Kristina Hiney, PhD, Omega Fields equine nutrition advisor, has prepared a series of seasonal tips which can help the horse owner transition their horses from one season to another.

- Check the body condition score of all your horses, especially the older ones. Extra pounds will aid them in getting through the winter if you live in a cold environment.
- Have your horses teeth checked. Again for the older horses, it is important that their teeth are in good shape. Eating forage is a great way to produce heat in the horse's gut. Their teeth need to be in proper form to digest this feed.
- Pull out blankets and inspect for wear. Now is the time to get repairs done, not when the arctic wind is blowing!
- Check that all wiring and plumbing to the barn is in good repair.
- Check that all bucket and water tank heaters are working. While quite the timesavers, these devices can also cause get headaches if they don't function properly. If they are sending an electrical current into the water from a short, your horse will not drink. This can quickly lead to dehydration as horses are normally eating drier feed stuffs in the winter.

- Make sure you either have a reliable delivery source of bedding, or choose to get a larger stockpile for winter. This is not the season to run short!
- Deworm with a boticide after the first hard frost. The adult insect form will be dead, and there should not be any further infestation for your horse from bots.

An Autumn Ride

By Anne Martins

We were riding our mustangs, my husband and I,
Under a beautiful October Sky
There were three bachelor mustangs following us,
We felt truly blessed, for they were just curious.

I was riding Calamity Jane, my honey aboard Sam,
When Janie girl stepped on an old tin can
That didn't sound like sage she thought,
And next thing I knew she started to trot.

She spun to the left and hopped like a rabbit,
As I looked down and thought, dagnabbit,
I'm falling off, this ain't gonna last,
I'll hit the ground pretty darned fast.

Thoughts of despooking clinics raced through my mind,
I landed on my back, not on my behind.
She went one way and gave it a whirl,
But I had hold of a rein and reeled in my big girl.

I looked up the hill, and to my surprise,
Those stallions were trotting right over the rise.
All in a row, the roan, black and bay,
To see what was happening, was I ok?

I gathered up reins and climbed back in the saddle,
Not hurt at all, just a little bit rattled.
We continued along and as we looked back,
Those bachelors were still following right on our track.

Inquisitive though polite they followed along,
As if wondering to our horses did they belong
My honey turned Sam and walked up to the band,
They veered to the left and stood in the sand.

He came back to me and we rode along grinning,
They followed again just like the beginning.
We were so happy and feeling sublime,
Cuz the boys were pursuing us one more time.

He turned Sam once more and we started to laugh,
While I sat and witnessed my other half
Ride back up the trail and up to the troop,
They stopped for a moment, a beautiful group.

Then they reversed and raced up the hill
While Sam and Jane watched them quiet and still
From this adventure I wish to impress
Our mustangs are honorable and certainly the best!

Member of the Month—Deb Denkler

Hi, my name is Deb Denkler. I have been a member of High Desert Horsemen for a little over two years now. I found the club through a horse magazine that my girlfriend Marcy picked up and gave to me so I could look at. There was a Calendar of events which covered a few months time in the back. One of the events was a Moonlight Ride during the month of July. It sounded like so much fun that I called for more information. The ride was wonderful, and everyone that I met that evening was so friendly and welcoming that I knew I had found a club I wanted to belong to.

Since that time I have made many fun friendships that revolve around the passion of my life..... HORSES. This is not the first club that I have been a member of since I belonged to 3 different 4H clubs in Michigan where I was born and raised.....my Mom and Dad kept me pretty busy, or looking back on those times, I should say that my horses and I kept them busy! Mom and Dad told me that "horse" was one of the first words spoken out of my mouth, so the love for them started early on in my childhood. After years and years of begging at the age of 12, and with the promise of "I will muck out the stall and properly take care of her" they bought me my first horse. I kept my promise and am still chasing road apples, and still loving it. The smell and feel of a horse is a wonderful part of my life....it's spiritual!

I have two main men in my life. One is my husband and best friend Bill, the other is Hawk or as we so lovingly call him "The Hawkman" a.k.a. "opportunist sneaky butt". The reason for this nickname, as you have probably guessed is that if there is something to get into he tries, opening gates and barn doors with one swift nose, letting his buddies out so they can play. He defiantly has a colorful personality, and is a people horse. He has been driving a cart since he was 2 years young and I didn't ride him until he was 3. The first time I was on his back, I know he was wondering "what the heck are you doing up there Mom" and "where are the shafts". Hawkman is a Morgan; I have had Morgan horses in my life since I was 14. I do love the breed; they are wonderful partners, with great minds, willing to take on most anything that is presented to them. I have been lucky enough to own his Grandmother and Mother and to have him born here at our small ranch over 20 years ago this past spring.

I have done a lot of showing in my past with my horses, breed shows, state shows and with the 4H clubs, but my all time love of riding goes to the trails, which is what I enjoy the most with HDH. It is such a great joy to go on all the different rides that are put on, and then mix it with amazing horse people that share my passion.....what a lucky women I am!
